Avner Israeli, CEO
Massivit 3D
Lod, Israel

Dear Avner,

This past week we completed the installation of the Massivit 1800 3D printer. We are excited at all the possibilities the machine will bring our way.

After years of following the 3D print trend, we were happy to have found the technology that Massivit has created. The CEO of Carisma, Moshe Gil, recently stated, "If I hired my own team to create the machine I had envisioned, I would have hired all the same people and created the same machine. This machine was made for me, for my business, exactly what I was looking for."

The engineers at Massivit took a complicated concept and simplified it in the machine. The end result is pure genius. The machine is easy to use and easy to understand. The operational use, the maintenance, and the software are all intuitive.

Massivit's professionalism has made them a complete pleasure to deal with. The hospitality that was extended to our team when we travelled to Israel for extensive training was greatly appreciated. Both the technical and application trainings we participated in have proven to be tremendously valuable.

The engineers that supervised the installation in our Brooklyn shop were dedicated and focused. Golan Moyal and Aharon Weiss represented all the best Massivit has to offer. Their ingenuity, patience and problem solving skills provided for a seamless installation.

The Massivit 1800 will give us access to an area of business that we otherwise would have been unable to serve. As of today, we have started production on a quarter of million dollar contract that will be revealed to the public at the end of April.

Thank you for everything to date we look forward to the places we will go!

Hatzlacha!
